Frankfort Highway Com. Found Dead

Emil D. Cappel, well known Mokena farmer and highway commissioner of Frankfort township, was found dead by his wife Saturday morning in a feed grinding shed on his farm east of Mokena. He had committed suicide by hanging.

At the coroner's inquest held at the Cappel home in the afternoon it was learned Mr. Cappel had left a note in which he declared he had not slept day or night for a long time, due to grieving over the death of his only son Elmer who died about four years ago. He said he could stand the strain no longer.

Mr. Cappel was 57 years old and had lived in Mokena all his life. He was highly esteemed and was elected to the office of highway commissioner of Frankfort township a number of terms.

Surviving are his wife, two daughters, Mrs. David McMillen, Mrs. Harold Cooper, three grandchildren, three brothers, Andrew, Albert and Fred Cappel, two sisters, Mrs. Peter Mancke and Mrs. August Hauck, all of Mokena and many other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon from the late home to the St. John Evangelical church in Mokena with Rev. Theo. Haelele officiating. The last rites were very largely attended and the floral offerings were many and beautiful.

Interment was made in the St. John cemetery south of Mokena.

Opens New Printing Shop In Tinley Park

The Tinley Park Times which has been handled in The News-Bulletin plant in Mokena, but which has been a Cook County publication since 1928, is opening a printing shop in the Vogt Building in Tinley Park Saturday of this week when printing machinery and a linotype will be installed. The site of the new printing office is next door to the Vogt Dept. Store and has been occupied as a dental office by Dr. Bovick who is moving the office to his home.

Wm. Semmler, editor and publisher of The Tinley Park Times, established this paper which is the oldest local paper published in Bremen township. This was the first local paper to be published in the township. The Times was entered in the Tinley Park postoffice as a Cook County publication in 1928. The Times will now be set in the Tinley Park printing office. Job printing of all kinds will also be handled in this office.

Due to increasing business and the need for more room in the Mokena plant it was deemed best to open a separate shop for the Times in Tinley Park.

The plant at Mokena will be operated as heretofore and printing orders can now be placed with either shop. News and advertising material can now be placed with the Times office in Tinley Park. It will take about a week before the new plant will be in full operation.

Watch for announcement regarding grand opening date.

Flashers And Gates For New Lenox Crossing By June

The New Lenox Civic Club which is a little over a year old is really accomplishing things for the New Lenox community. First they were instrumental in securing a fire district for New Lenox township and then in securing the passage of a $10,000 bond issue.

The latest accomplishment is the protection of the Cedar Road crossing of the Rock Island railroad. The club took up the matter with the railroad about installing flashers at this crossing and have been advised that the railroad will not only install flashers, but also electric short arm gates same as have been installed in Tinley Park. The flashers and gates it is expected will be in operation in June.

MAY 2nd STEP-UP DAY FOR WILL CO., STUDENTS

Friday, May 2nd has been selected as the date most suitable to inaugurate the plan of having annual "Step-Up" Day for the prospective eighth grade graduates in the Will County Schools.

There has been a long felt need that more effort be made to bridge the gap between the elementary and high school.

On the date above mentioned, it has been suggested that all high schools plan to act as hosts to the eighth graders who may visit them.

It is recommended that any eighth grade student be permitted to attend the high school of his choice without being charged with loss of school time.

High school principals are being asked to give some type of statement of attendance to those eighth graders who visit them in order that the eighth grade teacher may be assured of the student's having attended the high school as agreed upon.

War Mongers

Doing Utmost To Get Us Into War

The warmongers are doing their utmost to get the United States into the European war with the attitude that even the 83 per cent of the American are against war, "the public be damned." Therefore it is up to this same public to show these war gods that 83 per cent of the people have more to say than 17 per cent war mongers.

Frankly, the undercurrent of conversation in Washington this week is not too encouraging. Hints are being dropped, some by officials, not to be surprised if the United States gets into war by May 30. Nobody hazards a guess as to what will precipitate the last step, but there are dozens of things that could happen.

With the House in recess and the Senate meeting only occasionally, very little has been happening on the legislative front. It was rumored last week that Senator Walter F. George, chairman of the powerful Foreign Relations committee, had acceded to the demand of Senator Tobey, would have his committee take up the convoy question this week.

The America First Committee is rallying all its forces to the support of the Tobey anti-convoy bill. The America First Committee advocates that wires, letters and postcards must flow in ever increasing volume to the members of the Senate Foreign Relations committee and to its chairman, Walter F. George. During the lease-lend fight, Senator George stated that he was against convoys. First informal poll of the committee showed only 8 of the 23 members in favor of the Tobey bill. A later poll indicated that 10 members were for it.

Crowds are beginning to overflow the American First Committee chapter rallies now being held thruout the nation. These mass meetings are being addressed by the leading non-interventionist Senators and Representatives. They are planned for the purpose of reaching those who even yet are not aware of the nearness of war. Our men "on the Hill" have recently pointed out the paradox of being in the majority on this controversial issue and having that majority become a handicap. For, just because it is a controversial issue, the radio must, by law, give equal time to the opposing side. Likewise, the newspapers give about equal space to the other side. The result is that even though the warmongers represent only 17 per cent of the people, (continued page 7)

Geo. Knudson, Mokena On For 60 Days

At a special meeting of the town board of Frankfort township held Tuesday night, George Knudson of Mokena was appointed Commissioner of highways of the township for a period of 60 days to take the place of the late Emil D. Cappel.

Legionnaire Elected Mayor of Orland

The village election in Orland Park held last Tuesday resulted in a smashing victory for the ticket headed by Walter R. Schussler, Jr., over the ticket headed by Stewart M. Loebe by a margin of over 2 to 1. Out of the 314 votes cast, there were 174 straight ballots of which Mr. Schussler's ticket received 127. A tabulation of the vote follows:

PEOPLE'S TICKET
Stewart M. Loebe, Village President 102; Ralph Town, village clerk, 102; village trustees, Howard Hewson, 98; Chas. Cooper, 102; A. C. Kay, 133; police magistrate, Carl Quigley, 127.

CITIZENS TICKET
Village President, Walter R. Schussler, Jr., 210; village clerk, Joseph Kust, 209; village trustees, Ike Cleveland, 209; E. A. Oranger, 190, Charles Nicolai, 174; police magistrate, Wm. Murphy, 178.

Neither Mayor William Kollman nor clerk H. Adele Cooper were candidates for re-election, consequently an unusual interest was taken in the election. Both tickets were composed of men of unusual high caliber and the voters were given an opportunity to choose from well qualified candidates.

Mr. Schussler is excellently fitted by back ground and training to assume the duties of Village President. He is the son of Dr. W. K. Schussler, who himself was President of the Village Board for several terms. He has been in the automobile business in Orland Park for twenty years and has served as village trustee. He is a Past Commander of Orland Park Post No. 526 of the American Legion, is President of the Orland School Board and is Chairman of the Selective Service Board for District No. 10 in Cook County.

Mr. Rust is an old resident of Orland Park and is employed by a local lumber company. Mr. Cleveland is Republican Committeeman for this district and is a supervisor for the State of Illinois Division of Highways and has also had previous experience as a trustee.

Mr. Oranger, while comparatively a new comer to the community, is in close touch with village affairs and problems thru his connection as manager of the local creamery.

Charles Nicolai is a native born Orlandite and his wide acquaintance as a previous trustee qualify him for his job.

Wm. Murphy, while an old resident of Orland, is making his first bow in politics. He is a construction engineer and is known for his friendly fairness which should make him an excellent man in the office of police magistrate.

The newly elected officials will assume office on April 28th and the community is to be congratulated in the selection of so capable a corps of public servants.

Increased Food Demands Face Nation As Lease-Lend Bill Spurs Consumption

By RAYMOND MITCHELL

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

CHICAGO.—What will the Lease-Lend bill and Uncle Sam's own fast moving defense program mean to American agriculture?

With $7,000,000,000 for all-out aid to Britain now added to the pyramiding total of $33,000,000,000 in congressional appropriations for defense and rearmament, this question is assuming growing importance.

Every farm family in America has a stake in the situation. Food is as much a weapon as planes, tanks and ships. The extent to which it is used is a matter of close concern to everyone on or near a farm.

Three fairly definite answers have already emerged. These are, however, dependent on a big "if"—If Britain is able to stand the battering of all-out Nazi air raids, if she can stave off invasion and survive the deadly attacks on her shipping life-line until American aid can become really effective:

1. America's farm export market—lost since Scandinavia, the Low Countries and France fell—may be partially restored through the "Feed Britain" provisions of the Lease-Lend bill.

2. The demand for farm products at home will be considerably increased.

3. Price levels will move upward.

Food Increasingly Important.

Let's look abroad, first. Under the terms of the Lease-Lend bill, Britain does not need to consider either price or ability to pay in making food purchases here. Up to now her expenditures have been for munitions only. Food has been imported from the Dominions.

The job of feeding Britain is in the hands of the Surplus Marketing administration of the U. S. department of agriculture—the same agency that superintends distribution of food for emergency relief here at home. To provide supplies ordered by Britain it merely has to increase the food orders being constantly issued for domestic relief.

British authorities have placed pork, lard, evaporated and dried milk, cheese, dried fruits, fruit

Lady Police Chief Preserves Order In Missouri Town

PARMA, MO.—The only police officer on duty here during the day and the chief of the police force at all times—that's Maggie Porter, attractive 32-year-old "gun toter" who not only preserves order in Parma, but who's an expert cook, as well!

Folks in Parma claim, so far as they know, that she is the only woman chief of police in the U. S. A.

But Chief Porter disclaims any credit for her unique role.

"I was appointed town marshal after the death of my father, John W. Porter, who was serving his second term in that office," she explains.

It all sounds simple, but what Miss Porter fails to say is that all through his administration she was her father's "right hand man," keeping his books and even helping him on the street when the town was crowded with visitors.

When Mr. Porter could no longer carry on his duties, his daughter pinned the badge of authority on her coat lapel, strapped his six-shooter around her waist, and proceeded to do everything from making arrests to handling the $10,000-a-year tax collections that "go with" the chief-of-police duties in Parma.

And after his death, the city council of this community of 1,200 persons voted to make her successor to Mr. Porter, and she'll hold the job at least until the next election.

Chief Porter, who works with W. B. Morgan, business-man mayor of Parma, and four male council members, is the town's only day-time police officer. She has a night marshal and often appoints a deputy to work with him. And on Saturday nights, she remains on duty until nearly midnight, ready to direct the work of law enforcing.

Trouble? "Occasionally," Chief Porter says, "when some outsider comes to town, gets drunk and starts showing off."

Asked what her most exciting duty had been, Chief Porter said, without much hesitation, "Tracking down the criminal who shot my night marshal, W. T. Wormack, on December 22, 1940."

She hopes the time never comes when she has to use her gun, but admits that if that time comes, she'll be ready.

It's not at all unusual, say local citizens, to see her "collar" some law violator and march him off to the town's jail.

Chief Porter lives with her widowed mother. She was born in Missouri, but attended business college in Michigan.

Her straight, raven-black hair, cut man's style and combed in a pompadour, is Miss Porter's outstanding physical characteristic.

The job of feeding Britain is in the hands of the Surplus Marketing administration. This organization has had considerable experience providing supplies for domestic relief. This carload of oranges is but a small part of the huge quantities of food constantly being moved under their supervision throughout the country.

juices and vegetables on the top of their shopping list. The number of items will be expanded as opportunities arise.

Other Countries Ask Aid.

Britain will not be the only beneficiary. Finland needs food badly and has already negotiated a $5,000,000 credit with the Export-Import bank for food purchases if shipping is available. That is just a beginning if further credit can be provided. Spain and unoccupied France are on the list, too. How much they get will depend on British blockade policy. Indications are that it will be tempered by American opinion.

Now let's glance at the home market. Agriculture has already felt the defense program's stimulating impact. It will feel it even more in months to come. There is an increasing demand for farm products. Americans are buying more and eating more because they have money to spend. Still more cereals, meats, fats, dairy products, fruits and woolens will be needed.

Reports from the U. S. department of commerce show that a rise in employment is invariably accompanied by a rise in the consumption of meats, dairy and poultry products along with fruits and vegetables.

Defense Spending Rises.

How the defense program is influencing industrial activity, employment and consumer income is shown by the fact that defense expenditures rose from an average of $7,000,000 a day last September to more than $21,000,000 a day last month. These expenditures have not hit full stride yet, for many appropriations have been slow getting into circulation because contracts had to be let. When it is considered that payrolls represent from 45 to 70 per cent of defense expenditures, the future level of industrial activity may be gauged.

Thus the consumer buying power generated by the defense program is likely to be felt in the form of a bigger cash income on most American farms this year.

It is natural that the increased demand for food and raw materials should be reflected in a rising trend in wholesale prices. A recent bureau of labor statistical report shows that wholesale commodity prices are swinging upward and are

Chief of Police Maggie Porter, who not only handles a policeman's "run of the mill" jobs with ease and effectiveness, but who manages a boys' baseball team and likes to cook, too!

Tongue May Hold Proof of Child-Parent Relationship

NEW YORK.—Man's highly sensitive tongue may turn out to be the generation-to-generation "fingerprint" which jurists have long sought as a means of proving relationship between parents and children.

Following experiments several years ago by Dr. A. F. Blakeslee of Carnegie institute, scientists working with the "taste buds"—tiny nerves nestling underneath the surface of the tongue—are wondering now at the highest point since the outbreak of the war.

All of the foregoing factors will probably combine to boost the cash farm income of American farmers above the 1940 totals. Some of this income gain will, of course, be offset by the higher costs for farm labor and for the products the farmer buys. Fertilizer is about the only commodity that has not registered a sharp price rise since 1933.

Overexpansion Dangerous.

How long the defense program's stimulus to industry and agriculture will endure is problematical. This hinges to a good extent on how long the European war continues. But in months to come American farmers will have an opportunity to strengthen their position and fortify themselves for the future. To do this some straight thinking will be required. Of essential importance is that farmers avoid overexpansion and the pitfall of easy profits that may later turn into losses. The first World War taught us some bitter lessons about that. Surpluses that have burdened agriculture ever since can be traced to World War days.

What can farmers do to make agriculture one of the most effective weapons in Democracy's arsenal?

For one thing, they can develop ways and means of making their production more efficient. An important step in this direction is to take stock of their soil fertility. For the country-wide co-operation with the AAA program, fewer acres are being tilled. This means that farmers should employ soil management methods that will produce higher yields from fewer acres. Such a procedure will reduce production costs and improve the quality of the crop. Such a program means exercising far-seeing care in concerning the fertility of the soil by practices which not only prevent waste of fertility, but actually help restore it.

Soil Fertility Declines.

America has used up the original fertility of its soil much more rapidly than it has replaced it. Constant croppings, generation after generation, have removed vast quantities of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash. We have lagged far behind Europe in soil conservation.

Nations abroad use from 2½ to 20 times as much commercial plant food per acre as does the United States for fertilizing crop land and plowable pasture.

Based on the average rate of depletion, American farms will lose 29,000,000 tons of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash in 1941 due to the removal of plant foods by growing crops, through livestock grazing and by leaching, according to an estimate of the Middlewest Soil Improvement committee.

In the effort to defend and build up the productivity of their soil, farmers of the United States have one advantage they didn't possess 25 years ago during the first World War. Then we faced a fertilizer shortage because we were almost entirely dependent on Germany for potash and on Chile for natural nitrates. Today, thanks to the teamwork of science and American industry, we are producing our own plant foods and we can maintain our independence in this respect for an indefinite period.

If national emergencies grow more acute and American farmers hear the "Be prepared" signal to get their land ready for any eventuality, they will know it can be done if they have enlisted under the banner of soil improvement.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Strikes in defense industries causing labor to lose public support... Hydro-electric power probably Roosevelt's paramount interest in St. Lawrence seaway project.

(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

WASHINGTON.—Strikes holding up national defense had become the toughest kind of problem before the mediation board was appointed, and the first publicity the board had did not help much toward convincing the public that a solution of the problem had been reached. This first publicity—ignoring the picture-taking, the appointment of the members and the formal organization—was that the board could take up only strike situations which had been certified to it, so to speak, by the department of labor.

Most of the senators and representatives on Capitol Hill who have been criticizing the policy of permitting strikes to interfere with national defense work have always distrusted Secretary of Labor Perkins.

This is made slightly milder by the fact that both congress and the corps of Washington newspaper men have a great deal of confidence in John R. Steelman, who is the chief mediator in the strike situations for the department of labor. If it becomes known that Steelman thinks any particular thing is all right, that carries a lot of weight.

But this modification scarcely affects the public. Hence it does not affect the mail pouring in on individual members of congress. The public is very definitely—if one may construe anything from this mail—convinced that the government has been fiddling while Rome burns on this whole business. The mail shows conclusively that there is very little sympathy for the stand labor has been taking.

'LABOR' LOSSES SUPPORT

This comes on top of several developments, which have paved the way for a less friendly audience for labor's side of the story. One is the pounding that Westbrook Pegler has been giving the labor racketeers and the union leaders for not doing something about it. The other is the widespread publicity given to the initiation fees charged laborers who wanted to work on some of the government cantonment contracts. When such a friend of labor and a hater of most capitalists as Sen. George W. Norris of Nebraska takes the floor to warn labor, things have really been moving.

Just what will happen is anybody's guess. But one thing is certain. If the delay to defense work continues, there will be such public clamor that congress, already boiling about the situation, will not only investigate the strikes, but will do something more drastic. It may not be the wise thing to do, in the long run, but whatever it happens to be is going to be very unpleasant.

St. Lawrence Seaway Is Six-Year Project

So far no one has suggested one of the most appealing economic reasons for the St. Lawrence seaway—it will enable salt-water ships to rid their hulls of barnacles, because scraping the hulls of ships of these foes is simple in fresh water, almost impossible in salt water.

But even the most earnest advocates of the St. Lawrence project admit that it will be at least six years, maybe seven, before the seaway can be opened to traffic. Meaning, of course, six to seven years after it is started.

Then assuming the war is still in progress, and hence that the national defense justification for the canal held, a few well-placed bombs would cripple navigation just as effectively as they would at Panama, where that danger is resulting in the construction of another set of locks.

PRESIDENT SUPPORTS MEASURE

Why does the President press this measure, knowing that it will be at least six years before the seaway can be completed? Why does he talk about the need for ships, and the possibility of drawing both merchant and warships from Great Lakes shipyards, now that all the shipbuilding ways on salt water are jammed with orders?

The answer to all this is simple. The President has never been really interested in the seaway project per se. He is interested in the development of hydro-electric power on the St. Lawrence river. That power can be produced, the experts insist, three years after work is started. Of course, cheap power could be obtained in a shorter time than that by building steam plants, but it would not be as simple to put the building of government steam-power plants under the national defense mantle. Everybody knows that privately owned utilities would be very glad to build additional power plants if assured of a market.

Incidentally that strike at Milwaukee has put off the time for any number of power plants being brought into operation. It alone makes the turbines for power plants and warships.

Prevention of Pneumonia by Food and Rest

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

SO STARTLING has been the drop in the death rate in pneumonia due to sulphanilamide and similar drugs that a movie shows two physicians trying to reduce the death rate to nothing as they feel that there should now be no deaths in pneumonia.

Despite this new and effective drug, the number of cases of pneumonia is not decreasing, in fact it is increasing, because one attack of pneumonia in an individual does not prevent further attacks, as it does in some ailments, but actually predisposes the patient to further attacks.

In one country where there has been stress, strain, overwork and under-nutrition for some years, one of the reports from the physicians of that country shows a great increase in the number of cases of pneumonia.

It was found that the number of cases increased greatly during the cold months. This was thought to be due to there being less sunshine during the winter months, but further investigation showed that coldness and dampness were equally, if not more, to blame.

Most of us are aware of the chill experienced after being heated by exercise or after having a hot bath. The chilliness or coldness of the air seems to stiffen or tighten the muscles. This is well known to baseball pitchers, who often on a warm day put on a sweater or put their pitching arm in the sleeve of their sweater while their team is at bat.

Blood Chilled.

Cold air striking the warm body means that the blood going back to the lungs is chilled and not able to take on oxygen or throw off wastes as well. This blood is therefore not able to throw off, or prevent, the organisms of pneumonia or other diseases from starting trouble.

Heat is life to the body and its defenses and cold has the opposite effect, particularly in those who are rundown and undernourished.

To avoid pneumonia then, we should eat well, get plenty of sleep, and avoid draughts, dampness and cold when we are heated.

Insulin and Its Effect on Weight

AS A youngster, and even well up into my teens, I enjoyed reading stories of the South Sea islands and the savage tribes which inhabited them. I always laughed to myself as I read of the "medicine" men and of how they would boil the organs of animals and give the "soup" to sick natives.

Today we know that the soup of organs such as the pancreas, liver and stomach, extracted by refined scientific methods, saves the lives of hundreds of thousands yearly by preventing death in diabetes and pernicious anaemia.

Some months ago I recorded the experience of several physicians who had found insulin of great help in building up underweight children. Just how the insulin increased weight was still unknown, but that it increased the appetite was one noticeable result. An editorial in the Journal of the American Medical association suggests that the insulin stimulates the nerve which causes the stomach walls to contract and so set up hunger pains, and increase the amount of stomach and other digestive juices, so that more of the food that is eaten would be absorbed into the blood, thus giving more strength and increasing the weight. The fact also that insulin reduces the amount of sugar in the blood by enabling the body to use more sugar (instead of letting it be thrown out in the urine) also increases the hunger pains in the stomach.

One of the methods of stimulating appetite, particularly in nervous or mental cases, is the use of histamine. That insulin is more effective in these cases is recorded by Dr. P. Horstmann, Finland, who tested out both histamine and insulin in six such cases, one of which had the normal quantity and quality of stomach digestive juice and five did not. In all cases insulin was more effective than histamine.

THE SMOKY YEARS

By ALAN LE MAY W.N.U. Release

INSTALLMENT 6 THE STORY SO FAR:

Dusty King and Lew Gordon had built up a vast string of ranches which stretched from Texas to Montana. King was killed by his powerful and unscrupulous competitor, Ben Thorpe. Bill Roper, King's adopted son, undertook to break Thorpe's power. His first step was to start a cattle war in Texas. He made this decision against the opposition of Lew Gordon and the fearful pleading of his sweetheart, Jody Gordon. With the aid of Dry Camp Pierce and other outlaw gunmen, Roper conducted raid after raid upon Thorpe's herds. Cleve Tanner, manager of Thorpe's Texas holdings, seemed helpless to stop him. Gunmen seized control of isolated ranches, and cattle were driven off by the thousands as entire herds are driven across the Rio Grande into Mexico.

"Sometimes it looks like I'm not even doing that."

"If you haven't accomplished anything else, you've astonished my father. He's said himself, over and over, he wouldn't have supposed it could be done. No question but what Cleve Tanner is shaken; he's shaken clear down to his roots. Nobody knows what's what any more, or what will happen. People who thought a year ago that Cleve Tanner was invincible—they're saying now that he's coming to the end of his string; that if this thing goes on, Tanner will be through."

"What else do they say?"

"They're saying that the worst renegades of the trail are working together, for the first time—the killers, the men who don't care if they live or die. They say they have money back of them now, and that even Cleve Tanner, with all his string of outfits, can't stand up against the everlasting raiding, and stampeding, and mysterious loss of cattle. They say he's lost twenty outfits, just because he couldn't spare the gunmen to hold the range."

"Eleven outfits," Roper said.

"Then it was really you?"

"Those eleven outfits they speak of—those were outfits roughed away from little lonely men, on pretenses that hadn't any justice or any true law. Those outfits are back with their owners now."

"But—you admit your wild bunch is behind all this?"

"Call it that if you want to. I guess there isn't anybody knows as well as you do what I'm trying to do."

She said in a dead voice, "I never believed it; I couldn't believe it—until now."

"Didn't I tell you about it? I told you about it before I began. I set out to break Cleve Tanner; and by God, he'll be broken—if I live."

"You know Cleve Tanner has put up five thousand dollars for your arrest?"

Bill Roper chuckled crazily. "All right. I'll put up ten thousand for his arrest. There isn't going to be any arrest, and he knows that, too."

"I can't believe it," she kept saying over and over. "I can't believe it even yet."

"You can't believe what?"

"That you're an outlaw—a wild bunch boss—thrown in with the ugliest killers this range has ever seen, or any range."

He said ironically, "Don't hardly see how I could use second rate men."

"Reports have come in," Jody said wonderingly, "from over eight hundred miles of country; they're beginning to call it a rustlers' war, a final showdown between the wild bunch and lawful men. And you—"

"What about me?"

"Oh, Billy, it's unbearable! That you—you've turned yourself into the festering point of all that struggle, and hate, and lawless gunning—"

He had to grin at that, unhappy as he was. "Didn't realize I was festering," he said.

"You had everything," she said, "and you threw it away . . ."

He had only heard her say that once before; but, in memory, he had heard it so often since that her words had the ring of a familiar song.

"I'm sorry that we can't ever see things the same," Bill said. "I started out to get Cleve Tanner, and I'll get him. After Tanner, Walk Lasham; and after Walk Lasham, Ben Thorpe. But when it comes to saying I had everything before I started in, I guess maybe that isn't so."

Jody said hotly, "There wasn't one thing in all the world you didn't have—or couldn't have had—before you chose this crazy way!"

"I didn't have you," he told her. "If I had had you, I guess I would have you yet. Things don't shift and change so easy as that—not in the part of the world I know."

He was pulling on his gloves now, buttoning his sheepskin coat. In what was left of the light, the shadows lay heavy upon his face. As he stood there, he could have been Dusty King himself—the man who had broken a hundred long and weary trails; except that Dusty King had perhaps never looked so old.

Her voice came to him as if from a distance. "And when you're through," she said—"what are you going to have left?"

"Far as I know," Bill Roper said, "I'm not going to have anything left. God knows I've got very little left now." He was glad she didn't know how his resources had dwindled, how close to the end he really stood.

Her voice rose sharply. "Can't you see there's no hope in this ghastly thing? Thorpe's grip is unbreakable." She came close to him, and her words came through her teeth. "It's your very life you're throwing away!"

Perhaps he misunderstood her then; for he grinned. "Maybe," he said, "that would be the least I could lose, the very least of all . . ."

Mother Disappears While on Search For Dead Infant

Leading Son, 3, She Wanders Into Oblivion as Her Husband Hunts.

SAN FRANCISCO.—Somewhere, probably in this city, a woman was wandering the other day in a daze of tragedy, and with her trudged her three-year-old son, unaware that his mother was leading him, and herself, toward an uncertain fate.

To prevent another and possibly greater disaster from descending upon the family, the woman's husband, discouraged and impoverished by a two-month search, journeyed to San Francisco and appealed to the police to help him. He is Thomas B. Crotty, 36, of Walla Walla, Wash., music teacher, violinist, one-time assistant concert master of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

The woman whom he asked them to help find is Mrs. Helen Schwartz Crotty, 32, former art student in Paris, France; mother of Charles Crotty, who died in his eighth month, and of Thomas Crotty, 3, fellow wanderer with his mother.

Once Happy Home.

Until last November, the Crotty home in Walla Walla was as happy as you may. Mr. and Mrs. Crotty, who met in Paris while he was touring Europe, worked day by day to develop into reality their ambitious dreams for their children.

Crotty bought a rare and expensive violin for son Thomas and the child already had shown a talent for playing. Charles, too, was to be a musician, the parents agreed.

Then Charles died.

Less than two weeks after the funeral, Mrs. Crotty took Thomas by the hand and walked out of her home.

For six weeks there was no word of the pair, and those six weeks were Crotty's first taste of what hell on earth can be like.

He closed his studio, packed a few possessions, ranged the coast cities, seeking some trace of his wife and child.

He went down to San Francisco, and at Christmas time his search was rewarded. A friend had seen Mrs. Crotty and the child—somewhere in the Fillmore district. That was all the friend knew.

Then Charles died.

Crotty haunted the Fillmore area until one day he came face to face with his wife and his baby.

Unable to Explain Actions.

She hardly remembered, Crotty said, how she and the child had lived. The past was a blur. She could think only of their dead child, something inside was urging her on, ever onward, where she could not say.

But happy again with her husband, she started back with him to Walla Walla. At Portland they stopped to visit friends. Mrs. Crotty suddenly arose from a chair, said that Thomas appeared ill and that she would take him for a walk.

"The air might do him good," she explained.

Crotty could not know that once again his wife was answering an irresistible urge—the urge to seek something she could never find. The vision of the dead child, Charles, must have been before her as she led Thomas out of the Portland house.

She never came back. Crotty has never heard from her. He does not know what may have befallen his wife and their only surviving son, but he believes they are in San Francisco.

So he has taken up the long, weary search again. Once again it has brought him to San Francisco—shabby, broke, living on hope of the future and on memories.

Talking 'Mute' Lands in Jail; Forgets His Card

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—Four "deaf mutes" supposedly working their way through college recently ran afoul of Salt Lake City police when one of their number talked.

Police arrested the "mute" after a customer, whom the youth had tried to sell a 10-cent package of bandages, reported the matter. Taken to headquarters, the youth forgot all about a card he carried explaining that he was a mute and began to talk fluently.

His story led to the arrest of three companions at a tourist camp. All three carried the same kind of cards.

The suspects—two of them from Georgia and two from Wisconsin—told officers they had been averaging about $20 a day with their "racket."

Fickle Dog Upsets the Dignity of His Court

NEW YORK.—Jacob Solomon and Irving Zimmerman went before Magistrate Joseph Flynn to prove the disputed ownership of a dog.

"Here Rudy!" said Solomon. The animal tore across the court room and licked Solomon's face.

"Here Captain!" shouted Zimmerman. Similar doings.

"Hey you!" the judge said from the bench. The pup bounded right up and licked his face.

"I give up," said Magistrate Flynn. "Case dismissed."

USING WITNESSING POWER

LESSON TEXT—Acts 2:14; 4:8-20.

GOLDEN TEXT—They were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and they spoke the word of God with boldness.—Acts 4:31.

In the right place at the right time and in the right attitude—these are unfailing conditions of divine blessing.

Note also how fitting it was that on that Sunday morning—evidently in the upper room—the disciples were "with one accord in one place," ready for the great gift of power and grace for life and ministry which God had for them, and through them for the world. One wonders what might happen today if Christian people would be in God's house on the Lord's day, in complete accord and unity, expectant looking for His blessing.

I. The Holy Spirit Poured Out (2:14).

"We are not to imagine that at this Pentecost He first came into the world. In all ages He had been imparting life and guidance and strength and holiness to the people of God; but He was now to work with a new instrument, namely, the truth concerning a crucified, risen, ascended, divine Saviour. For the proclamation of this truth the Church was the appointed agent. The story of Pentecost, therefore, is the first chapter in the history of the Church as it witnesses for Christ, and it embodies the impressive lesson that in all successful witnessing the power is that of the Spirit and the instrument is the message of the gospel."

The outpouring of the Spirit on the day of Pentecost was accompanied by signs of great power, and a special endowment which enabled all the strangers in Jerusalem to hear the gospel in their own tongue. "This ability to speak in foreign languages not previously learned was merely a temporary endowment granted for a special purpose. It was one of those miraculous spiritual gifts which marked the age of the apostles. In modern times the claim to possess this power has never been established on credible evidence, nor is the dominance of the Spirit in the life of a believer to be tested by the presence of any special gift" (Charles R. Erdman).

II. Mighty Works Performed (4:9).

Reference is made here to the healing of the lame man—a miracle which resulted in the imprisonment of Peter and John. It was a work of power, but only the first of many which the disciples were to perform. An even greater work was that of the Spirit-filled preaching of the gospel which brought 3,000 souls into the church (2:41). As we marvel at that event, we need also to keep before us the recurring day-by-day miracle of the regeneration of individuals (2:47). This was, and is, accomplished through the teaching of the Word (2:42).

III. True Witness Presented (4:8-12).

The rulers and leaders (especially the Sadducees) were angered by the proclamation of the resurrection of the One they had crucified. They also feared that their rich revenues from the temple might be cut off if the people were to follow Christ (4:4), so they took the disciples into custody and brought them before the Sanhedrin.

Humanly speaking, one might have expected these men to stand in fear and awe before that august body, and either become dumb with terror or brazenly defiant. But such is not the operation of the Holy Spirit in a man. They spoke tactfully, but boldly, of the death and resurrection of the only One in whom there is any salvation.

IV. Faithful Though Persecuted (4:13-20).

Not being able to make any real charge against the disciples, the rulers let them go, but only after threatening them and forbidding them to speak any more of Christ. They, like so many religious leaders of today, were quite willing that the disciples should preach, if they would only leave out the name of Christ.

Note the answer in verse 19. There is only one message (v. 12). "Neither is there any other name under heaven, that is given among men, wherein we must be saved"; thus Peter asserts not only that the miracle has been wrought in the name of Jesus Christ, but that he and his judges can have eternal salvation in no other name. His words are at once a rebuke, a challenge, and an invitation. They need to be reviewed and weighed today by certain benevolent but superficial talkers who are asserting that Christianity is only one among many religions, and that it is only necessary for one to be sincere in his own belief. Such teachers must reconcile their statements with those of Peter and John, who were "filled with the Holy Spirit" when they declared that there is but one name wherein we must be saved."

IN LOVING MEMORY

Wannemacher — Mrs. Peter. In cherished memory of our beloved mother who passed away one year ago, April 17.

'Tis hard to break the tender cord, When love has bound the heart, 'Tis hard, so hard to speak the words,

We must forever part.

Dearest loved one, we have laid thee,

In the peaceful Grave's embrace, But the memory will be cherished 'Till we see thy heavenly face.

Loving Children.

STANDS the most powerful nation on the face of the world . . . powerful because of its 130,000,000 happy, unified, liberty-loving citizens . . . and powerful because of its infinite capacity to produce materials to construct a free, great country.

America boasts not of her capacity to produce goods for destruction, but stands serene and confident in this hour of world chaos in the knowledge that should the proponents of barbarism force her to do so, mankind will be stunned at the incredible torrent of death-dealing instruments a peace-loving, tolerant, but aroused people can fashion to crush the foes of tolerance and liberty.

God grant that our mountains will be undecaying monuments to our priceless heritage . . . that our boundless prairies will continue to produce not only our food, but the nourishment of those soil-rooted virtues which are threatened with banishment by the frenzied madmen of another continent. God grant that our great expanse of oceans will by their very greatness protect us from the exponents of doctrines that would rob us of our priceless rights of freedom of speech, freedom of religious worship, freedom of assembly and freedom for an enlightened press. We are proud to be part of the first line of defense of American liberties . . . to always stand militantly at the side of every true American against the inroads of doctrines seeking to destroy America's priceless heritage.

IT'S ABOUT TIME: The House recently agreed to set apart the sum of $100,000 out of an appropriation voted for the Federal Bureau of Investigation to be used by the FBI for the investigation of all government employees who are members of subversive organizations or who are engaged in any subversive activities. The Dies Committee has a list of several hundred known communists who are in the government service and undoubtedly this would be a good starting point for the FBI officials to begin their investigation. What the attitude of the Administration will be on the matter is unknown at the present time. Heretofore, protests against communists have received scant attention at the White House. It is a known fact that many communists are on the government payroll and many men high in government circles who have communistic leanings are still holding their jobs with Executive blessing.

stirring and daring love story of our time, will be presented on the Roxy Theatre screen at Lockport, Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday, upholding the unusually fine performances of Charles Boyer and Margaret Sullivan.

This story is as true to life as life itself, as it is abounding with highly emotional and dramatic elements in every scampering frame of the celluloid tape. The theme relates a dramatic tale of a girl who is content to live in the remote and shadowed back street of a great man's life, sacrificing to help him in his career unheralded and suffering the anguish of loneliness which is her lot while he is busy with family and business affairs, because she lived on the "Back Street" of romance. The dramatic highlights of this great story by Fannie Hurst go through the years from 1898 to 1930, and it is, without a doubt, a picture for your "must see" list and one you cannot afford to miss.

This Friday and Saturday, the Roxy Theatre will feature a fine twin-billing of "Barnyard Follies", with Ralph Bowman, Joan Woodbury, Harry "Pappy" Cheshire and Mary Lee, also, "Six Lessons from Madame La Zonga", with Lupe Velez.

Springfield News

NEWS FROM SPRINGFIELD

By
Bernice T. Van der Vries
Representative, Seventh District
General Assembly of Illinois

On legislative days the hotels of Springfield are jammed and many applicants for rooms are turned away. With the great variety of bills which have been introduced it is to be expected that in addition to the members of the General Assembly there should be many citizens attending hearings on bills of interest to them. All of the metropolitan newspapers are represented by several reporters and many of the newspapers in the large cities in Illinois send reporters to cover the legislature. In addition there are groups and individuals who are interested in securing jobs in some department of the state government. It seems timely, therefore, to warn my readers that if they are planning to visit the capitol city be sure that they have hotel reservations well in advance.

The work of the Assembly was curtailed somewhat last week because of the numerous elections held on Tuesday. The Senate only worked on Wednesday but the House met at noon on Tuesday and again on Wednesday. Only a short session with the introduction of bills and the advancement of first reading bills was held on Thursday.

Nearly two hours of Tuesday's session in the House was given over to the Minimum Wage Bill for Teachers which was called on second reading. The bill provides a minimum wage of one hundred dollars a month for each month of the school year. An effort was made to amend the bill by attaching a referendum, in other words the taxpayers would be given an opportunity to decide the question and to raise the tax levy to meet the financial needs. The amendment was defeated. Another amendment was offered setting up requirements in the way of college degrees for those who would receive the minimum wage. This amendment was also defeated.

The only amendments which survived were the ones postponing until 1942 the payment of the minimum wage, and specifying that no state aid would be paid to schools which did not pay the minimum. There was a conflict in the sections of the bill as amended and it was clarified. Another fight is anticipated when the bill is called for advancement to the roll call stage.

On Wednesday, in the Committee on Education, a bill to increase by law the school year to nine months was reported out with the recommendation that it be not passed. A teacher's tenure bill was recommended for passage after considerable opposition in the committee. Many members expressed themselves in the committee session and later informally after the adjournment that perhaps the legislature might just as well abolish the school boards if the General Assembly was going to say how much the teachers should be paid, how many months of school should be held and how teachers should be hired and dismissed.

Bills providing for the establishment of Council-Manager and Mayor-Small Council form of City government were introduced by Representatives Van der Vries, Swanson, Edwards, Clabaugh and Garman. The hearing for the proponents will be held on Wednesday of this week before the Municipalities Committee. The opponents will be heard at a later date.

The hearing on the bills providing for toll superhighways, the bills sponsored by Representatives Sprague and McCabe were postponed a week in order that the members might have an opportunity to study amendments which were offered by the sponsors of the bills. If we are to judge by the letters and telegrams there is great interest in the bills in the western suburbs.

Appropriation bills will soon pour in as the state budget seems to be nearing completion. Thus far there has been little work in the Appropriation committee. Probably the most difficult job which the new Governor has faced has been the preparation of the budget.

National House and Garden Exposition

In anticipation of the opening of Chicago's gigantic Sixth Annual Home Show at the Coliseum next Saturday (April 19), an army of workmen are working night and day to get everything in readiness for the nine-day event.

Exhibitor and public interest reflect indications that the real estate, building and home furnishings market are at the high point of a decade, according to John A. Servas, managing director of the National House and Garden Exposition.

Ways and means of remodeling old homes and constructing new ones will be graphically portrayed with cooperation of leading associations in the building material, home construction, equipment, home furnishing field, and civic groups. Developments in home planning, financing, construction, building materials, equipment, garden tools and accessories of every kind will be on display.

One of the features of the show will be a style show of home interiors, showing the latest news in home furnishing, from attic to basement rumpus room. Luxurious pow-

Another fascinating display shows twenty miniature model homes of various types, in every detail. They are third dimensional illustrations of homes that tell the blueprint story in layman's language, and make it unnecessary for the home-hunter to tramp on one sub-division to another on his Sunday afternoons. At the home show he can visit twenty model homes in twenty minutes!

The miniature homes are built to exact scale from architect's working drawings. The represent homes ranging from $4,500 to $10,000. Roofs may be removed to reveal stairways, plumbing, heating equipment.

A full program of entertainment includes art exhibits, music, movies, ping pong games, and many other items.

The entire center of the Main Hall will be transformed into a beautiful vista of gardens, showing ideas in landscaping art that can be transferred to the two-by-four city plot or the suburban estate. Gay spring flowers, flowering shrubs and bushes that grow best in the climate will be lavishly displayed. They have been forced early by growers for the show.

MOKENA

A POET'S INSPIRATION

Inspired by the setting sun,
And rivers rippling bubbles,
Inspired by the springtime fun,
A poet forgets his troubles.

In God's earth we wait for Heaven
And though we detect it not,
This earth of ours, this Godly
Heaven
Is Heaven, the earthly spot.

No gloom can spread throughout this place,
No devil's doings can stay,
No man can obscure the Heavenly face
Of the One to whom we pray.

The poet's writings of our earth,
His heavenly inclinations,
The earth, our world, is none the worse,
From a poet's inspirations.

—Gordon H. Clevenger, Mokena.

SCHOOL NEWS
PRIMARY ROOM
This room has had quite a number of cases of absence due to illness of measles and mumps.

The children started a "Signs of Spring" chart and are very much interested in it.

The room is very attractively decorated with Easter lilies which the children have made.

INTERMEDIATE ROOM
The pupils were very glad to welcome back to their room, Joanne Marti, who has returned from Florida. Joanne brought each of the pupils a shell from Florida as well as many interesting things to show them during the English hour. Joanne also gave a very fine account of her trip. This was enjoyed by all.

Don Heyden returned to school after having been in bed with a broken leg.

During the geography class in the 6th grade, the pupils enjoyed a quiz program. This was conducted as those on the radio and much interest was shown.

Contests have been held in the arithmetic classes between the girls and boys. Scores are being kept.

JUNIOR HIGH ROOM
A safety contest was held in the room recently between the freshmen and sophomores. Five pupils were chosen from each class to write and answer the questions. After the contest was over, the scores were added and the freshmen were found the winners.

The freshmen geography class is studying the first World War.

War Mongers
Doing Utmost To

they get a 50-50 'break' in the news. Furthermore, the 83 conscious that they are in the majority, tend to feel that they do not have to exert themselves to keep the country at peace. On the other hand, the minority realize that they must make noise enough so that they will SOUND like more than 17 per cent, if they are to be successful in overcoming the fact that they are outnumbered 5 to 1. Therefore to wake up the lethargic peace forces, the fighting Senators and Representatives have decided to carry their campaign for peace directly to the people. First reports reaching the National Headquarters of the America First Committee on the Wheeler and Nye tours were even more enthusiastic than had been expected. Nws of their reception filtered back to Washington and the result was that other men took fresh hope and offered their services to the National Committee. The following Senators are now speaking before America First Chapters: Wheeler, Nye, Clark of Missouri, Clark of Idaho, and Brooks. On a swing thru the East, are Representatives Fish, Mundt and Rankin. In the success or failure of these meetings lies a good share of America's hope for peace, because only of the sentiment of the 83 per cent of the people who do not want war is made expressive and militant, will the legislators have the courage to carry on.

Those who voted for the lease-lend bill saying that it did not mean convoys and did not mean war—that it was a peace bill must not be allowed to forget their words. Only when great numbers of people remind them of their reasons for voting for the bill—only then will they 'remember' their words.

It is said that this month Washington will try to 'wake up' the nation to the fact that we are nearing a state of war. 'Waking up' process will be done by moves similar to those calling for seizure of Axis ships, and defense of Greenland—this summer will see heavier taxes voted. . . plans are already worked out for sending armed forces into Africa.

About a week from now those who are for bloodcoated, instead of sugar coated phrases, will mother a 'tailor-made for war' group with the holier-than-thou title of "The Fight For Freedom Committee." The committee will include in its membership the following:

Bishop (Episcopal) Henry W. Hobson, Cincinnati, Greenville Clark, lawyer of New York, Francis P. Miller, of Fairfax, Va., organizer for the Council on Foreign Relations, James P. Warburg, banker, of New York, Lewis Mumford, author, General John F. O'Ryan of New York. Registered with the State Department as an agent of the Japanese Government, Elston Belknap of Milwaukee, Wis., physician, Ernest Graham Guthrie of Chicago, Congressional minister, Herbert Agar, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, Rupert Hughes, author, Walter Mills, author of "The Road To War", James F. Curtis of New York former assistant secretary of the Treasury, Dr. L. M. Birkhead of New York and Kansas City, Bishop W. Bertrand Stevens of Los Angeles, John L. Balderston, Beverly Hills, California, Frank Smoots, reporter on the Secretary of Navy's Interventionist Chicago Daily News, Rex Stout of Brewster, New York.

The warhawks are about to launch a nation wide convoy campaign around the slogan "Deliver the Goods to Britain Now."

In his great anti-war speech held Tuesday night in Denver, Colo., Sen. Burton K. Wheeler said in part: "Thousands have been sacrificed in the blood baths of Europe and of Africa because of assurances given their governments by President Roosevelt's ambassadors and representatives."

"The blood of these people lies upon our heads", asserted Senator Wheeler. "There can be little doubt but what this nation has made promises of military aid to Greece and Yugoslavia."

"They were promises that cannot be fulfilled but they were promises which led those nations down the bloody road to war. Our guarantees to the Balkans will be no more effective than the British and French guarantees to Poland."

Speaking of the danger of invasion, Senator Wheeler declared that there are not enough boats in the world to bring across the ocean one million men and the necessary equipment to support their warfare.

In an address in Carbondale, Ill., Tuesday, Father John A. O'Brien, professor in the graduate school of the University of Notre Dame, said "war is a false path to freedom. We do not supply those wants by engaging in a gigantic campaign of destruction, by plowing under every fourth American boy, by setting our own house on fire."

Ford Airplane Engine Plant Emerges from 'Cocoon'

Workmen have begun tearing down the huge fiberboard canopy which sheltered the $21,000,000 Ford airplane engine plant at Dearborn, Mich., during winter construction. This view shows the front section of the plant. The entire building will be completed early in April—little more than six months from the time ground was broken. Ordinarily such a project would require 12 to 14 months, but the shelter built over the structure enabled crews to work around the clock through the dead of winter.

Personal and Property Tax

Time to pay your personal property and real estate taxes is close at hand. County Treasurer, John Toman today announced that the first batch of the 1940 real estate and personal property tax bills have been mailed and that each day thousands will leave his office until all Cook County bills have been mailed.

Penalty date is June 1, for personal property and the first installment of real state, but under the law, the Treasurer must have all bills in the hands of taxpayers a month before that date. Penalty date on the second installment is Sept. 1.

Toman warns all taxpayers who have not received their bills by May 1 to notify his office at once. Failure to receive your bill, he says, does not exempt you from the penalty. Bills sometimes are lost in the mails or a change of address finds them returned to the treasurer's office, he says.

Already the cashiers are ready to receive payment. Toman advised express order, bank draft, postal money order, thereby saving the taxpayer the long trip into the loop.

Personal checks will again be accepted, says Toman, but the bills will not be stamped paid until the check has cleared the bank.

The collecting of the 1940 taxes, will not in any way retard the collection of delinquents, the treasurer said. His squads are still active and will continue to make levies until all delinquents are served. Under this new procedure, instituted by Toman, millions in unpaid taxes are being collected.

The Chicago Real Estate Board is again advising taxpayers to have their bills stamped "Paid Under Protest." Taxpayers who wish to avail themselves of this must go to the Real Estate Board before paying their taxes.

The new slogan is: "Pay your taxes on time and avoid penalties and a levy later."

Illinois Agricultural Association Pointers

That farmers thruout the country should carefully analyze and fully understand the significance of the federal government's new increased production and price policy for certain farm products before making any material changes in their 1941 crop production plans, declared Earl C. Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural Association, in an address at Joliet recently before a mass meeting of farmers from Will and adjoining counties.

Farmers, Smith said, have always done their full part in meeting national emergencies and they will be glad to increase production at this time to the extent the administration may deem advisable to protect the consumers, not only in this country but also to fulfill national obligations abroad. But, he said, they are also vitally interested in being assured that in the post-emergency period, their increased production at this time will not have the same disastrous effects as was true in the years following World War number 1.

The new policy under which increased production of corn, hogs, dairy products, chickens and eggs would be encouraged during the next two years was announced by Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard on April 3. The secretary's announcement, came as a complete surprise to the Department of Agriculture's advisory committee to which it was presented, according to Smith who is a member of the advisory group.

Two features of the government plan as announced by Wickard would be particularly disappointing to American farmers, Smith declared. Principal objection, he said, is the failure of the price formulas in the new policy to carry out the principle of parity. "Parity," Smith declared, "is a principle for which organized farmers have fought for many years and was definitely established by congress in the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1933 and subsequent legislation as the just and worthy basis for American farm prices."

The second principal objection, Smith said, is that the new policy undoubtedly would have the result of putting a definite lid of 65 cents a bushel on corn prices, at least for the next year, with the possibility of much lower prices for many producers.

"With prices of both industrial products and industrial wages fast increasing," Smith declared, "farmers should insist that the administration not lose sight of the merit and fairness of parity prices. Only by such a price relationship can agriculture be safeguarded against the effects of rising prices in industry and labor."

In a summary of the state legislature situation, Smith emphasized the importance of one pending bill which seeks to protect milk producers by guaranteeing that farmers will receive full and prompt settlement from dealers for their milk. This would be accomplished, Smith explained, through a system of licensing, bonding and auditing the accounts of fluid milk dealers.

"If agriculture is to have a proper voice in securing and maintaining both state and national legislation for the protection of the farming industry," Smith concluded, "farmers must increasingly recognize the importance of organization. Only through a strong and vigorous association can we be assured of a proper place in national, state and local affairs."

Hog In Trading
Nervous Affair

Trade in hogs has been a nervous affair, but is showing signs of settling down. Price fluctuations from day to day have been wide, with salesmen striving hard to at least maintain stock at $9.00, but packers claim they have received no government orders for pork to support quotations and the job of sustaining the market at the pegged figure has been a difficult one.

Reports of 16 per cent more cattle on feed in the Cornbelt than a year ago have tended to hold down quotations in the steer department. Strong weights are meeting slowest sale. Prices, however, are averaging $1.65 per cwt. higher than a year earlier. On the other hand, cows are scarce and cashing highest in eleven years. Clipped lambs are being penalized, buyers preferring woolskins which are selling well.

Storage houses are well stocked with meats for this reason of the year. Holdings of pork total 784,550,000 lbs., largest for the period in nine years. Beef, at 90,462,000 lbs., is most for an April in four years. All classes of and eligible offal, totaling close to one billion pounds, are greatest for Spring since 1937.

Beef, pork and all meats combined decreased slightly from March 1 to April 1, but the various classes range from 16 to 25 per cent in excess of April 1, 1940, while lard, totaling 310,725,000 lbs., is 15 per cent over the corresponding time last year and almost double the April five year average reserves.

SOUPS FOR EVERY OCCASION . . .
(See Recipes Below)

SOUP'S ON!

Soups may be a substantial addition to a rather lean menu, or a distinctive touch to a dinner de luxe, for they vary all the way from the thin, clear, delicate consommés and bouillons to the hearty chowders and satisfying cream soups.

Economical, tasty, nutritious—what more could you ask of a dish so versatile? Make soup the mainstay of a family lunch or supper or the perfect beginning for a "company" dinner.

A little "dressing up" can play fairly godmother to the plainest dish—yes, even soup. Most people eat with their eyes, first of all. So, if you wish your soups to take on a party air, garnish them enticingly. Try sprinkling with buttered croutons, chopped parsley, a few grains of popcorn, toasted puffed cereals, minced chives, a dash of paprika, or a few tiny round crackers; or place a spoonful of whipped cream in the center.

For extra goodness, why not try cheese in soup? It will draw a big stamp of approval, as you will see if you try Potato Cheese Soup. Here's the recipe:

*Potato Cheese Soup.

(See picture at top of column)
3 medium sized potatoes
2 cups boiling water
2 to 3 cups milk
3 tablespoons butter
½ small onion
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons flour
Pepper, cayenne
1 tablespoon parsley
1 cup cheese, grated

Cook potatoes in boiling salted water until tender. Put through a strainer. Measure the liquid and add enough milk to make four cups. Scald. Melt the butter, add the finely chopped onion and simmer five minutes. Add the flour and seasonings and combine with the potato mixture. Cook three minutes and strain, if desired. Add cheese and beat until smooth. Add chopped parsley, top with buttered croutons.

Manhattan Clam Chowder.

¼ cup diced salt pork
2 cups diced potatoes
1 dry onion, diced
1 cup water
2 cups milk
1 can minced clams (about 1 cup)
Salt and pepper

Cook the diced pork and onion, stirring constantly 'til they are tender but not browned. Add the potatoes and water and simmer until the potatoes are tender. If the one cup of water is not sufficient to cover the potatoes, more should be added. When the potatoes are tender, add the milk and clams and seasonings and heat thoroughly. Serve with crisp, salted crackers.

One Dish Supper Soup.

¾ cup rice
1 cup chopped celery
2 small onions
1 green pepper
1 pint tomatoes
6 eggs
½ cup cheese
3 cups water
Salt

Add chopped celery and onions to a kettle of boiling water. Add chopped green pepper. Cook slowly 15 minutes. Add tomatoes. Just before serving, break the eggs into the hot soup. Sprinkle with cheese. Cover. Keep in warm place 5 min-

LYNN SAYS:

The water in which vegetables have been cooked, and left-over cooked vegetables may often be utilized in making excellent soups.

Minute tapioca, because of its thickening quality and attractive translucence, makes an excellent thickener.

Once thickened to the desired consistency, cream soups should be kept warm over hot water. Evaporation caused by additional cooking may make them thick and pasty.

THE PAPERS OF PRIVATE PURKEY

Dear Ma:

Well, ma, I now feel so tired and sore all over that I guess I am in the pink of condishun. All feeling is gone from my feet and my legs are numb from the knees down so the drilling and marching don't hurt me no more witch shows how well trained I am. But the officers keep drilling me just the same and pay no attention to me when I tell 'em I have had enuff.

We are sleeping five to a tent, but I am not getting any two much rest on account of the old saying that two is company and three more is overcrowding. There is always at least two buddies who want to tell stories or argue about ways and means to get promoted to be a kernel or something. And we have a radio fanatic in our tent who thinks the best programs come after everybody else is asleep. This guy is such a nut that if he was out in No Man's land he would carry a portable so he could hear a broadcast of what he was doing.

Another fellow in my tent don't sleep at all. He just sits on the edge of the bed moaning. It seems he was on a trip to see his best girl who lives 50 miles from his home town when he got a call to report for draft induckshun at once and he is still squawking. I also got a tent-mate who was a union man in Pittsburgh before he was drafted and he keeps making speeches trying to convince us that we shud picket the general's tent and demand more money and less drilling.

We have movies every night in a big tent, but I do not like them much as it makes me soar to see all those fellers in citizen close lolling around on couches and sitting in the moonlight with beautiful girls when they should be in some camp learning how to take a gun apart and guard a latrine. But they do not make me as soar as news pitchers of congressmen when they were still chewing the fat over that lease-lend bill. I don't even know yet weather I am going to be lent to Europe or just leased or what?

It sure has been a cold winter to be in a army, but the old sarge who was in the last war says we shud of been around then and we wud not be kicking now. We have wood-burning stoves in tents here and he says in the last war he never saw a stove from the time he got his draft summons until he got home three years later. They also have boilers so we can have hot water in this camp witch he says nobody had accept Pershing and Alexander Woollcott in the last one. When we got here we wuz given a safety razor five blades a cake of shaving sope and a toothbrush and he laffed like everything and sed we must be going to the opera or sum place like that as in the last war soldiers shaved with there bayonets and only cleaned their teeth when they had a friend who was a Y. M. C. A. secretary and carried a spare.

He says we are all getting better considerashun in draft camps today than he got in the best hotels on furrow in 1917 and he showed me a pitcher of an outfit in the last war witch backs him up when he says we are dressed like dudes in comparison. He says that in those days they just chucked a bundle at you when you reported at camp and that whatever you found inside you had to put on as a uniform, even if it was just a slip cover off a piano. And he says he spent 18 months in France with a burlap bag over his head because the sergeant told him it was the regulashun army hat.

So when I feel like kicking I just listen to him talk. Well there is not much more to say now. One of those new Ford pigmee trucks arrived here yesterday. It is all made of armor steel and all I want when I get back home again is one of these to use in Main Street traffic and pay no attenshun to those taxicabs what try to shove me around.

Your loving son,

Oscar.

P. S. I need more bunion plasters.

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THE pink and green chintz covered boxes on these closet shelves are lined with plain green cambric and they are hinged so that the front may be opened without taking off the lid. Any box of good stiff cardboard may be hinged and covered in this way. Library paste may be used or wall paper paste mixed with a little water as possible to make it spread smoothly with a paint brush. Adhesive tape or other strong gummed fabric tape will be needed to hinge the boxes.

Cut the box lid straight across with a sharp knife three inches in from the front edge. Cut out the front of the box and hinge the pieces in place. Now, cut and paste the covering pieces, as directed in the sketch. Apply the paste on both the back of the fabric and the box and smooth the material in place with a dry, clean cloth. Cover sides first with fabric straight around and about ½ inch over edges; then cover top

TIPS to Gardeners

REGARDING HERBS

MANY home gardeners may be interested in growing herbs this year because of the war, and because they make everyday dishes more appetizing and flavorful.

Herbs may be grown in a plot about four by six feet to supply the average needs of a family. They should have full sunlight and be planted in good loamy soil. Almost all popular herbs—balm, basil, borage, fennel, marjoram, rosemary, thyme, sage, anise, dill, and caraway—may either be used when young, and fresh, or prepared for use dried.

Anise, basil, borage, dill and savory are annuals; caraway, and fennel are biennials, and balm, marjoram, sage, rosemary, thyme and chives are perennials, although balm and marjoram are best treated as annuals.

All the herbs mentioned here will probably produce enough growth for use the first year, however, if seeds are planted early, and climate is normally temperate.

Visitor Stumped by Simple Science of Sustenance

In the midst of the scientist's labors a distinguished visitor was announced. The latter watched the absorbing investigations with an interested air, but the scientist's attention was concentrated upon a vessel which was enveloped in smoke and steam.

"Guess what is in here," he said. The visitor proceeded to enumerate things known to science. "Micrococci?"

"No."

"Sonococci?"

"No."

"Spirochetæ?"

"No."

"What, then?"

"Sausages!" said the scientist.

Resolved to Live

Resolved, to live with all my might while I do live. Resolved, never to lose one moment of time, to improve it in the most profitable way I possibly can. Resolved, never to do anything which I should despise or think meanly of in another. Resolved, never to do anything out of revenge. Resolved, never to do anything which I should be afraid to do if it were the last hour of my life.—Jonathan Edwards.

Desirable Motion

Many discoveries have been accidents—the result of stumbling on one thing while searching for another. But no one ever stumbled while standing still! So we feel that unintelligent motion is more to be desired than intelligent standing still.—Ketterly.

We Can All Be EXPERT
BUYERS

● In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.

● It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.

● When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Thus advertising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

PAINT SALE

BRADLEY-VROOMAN FINEST QUALITY HOUSE PAINT

$2.60

AT PER GAL.

FOR A RESTRICTED PERIOD

★ If you've ever experienced the grief and loss of money resulting from an unsatisfactory paint job, you will appreciate the age old adage which says: "Only when quality is maintained, can low price be considered a bargain."

You may feel assured that neither Bradley-Vrooman Company, who make the paint we sell, nor we, who offer it to you, would sanction the sale of an inferior product.

Nevertheless, we believe a startling bargain will induce people to paint their property right now—so we've set aside a quantity of BEST QUALITY House Paint, which will sell at a sharply reduced price.

The necessity of acting promptly is self-evident... better arrange to have us set aside some of this paint for you while it's on sale.
